BILIOUSNESS,
Indigestion,
Headache,
Liver Difficulties
of all kinds, cured by
BELL'S SARSAPARILLA.
This Remedy has proved itself a sterling medicine for cleansing the stomach of bilious matter so common in the spring months. Its great excellence is that it is being constantly recommended by others by those who have, and are using it for these troubles.
Bell's Sarsaparilla is a concentrated extract of roots, herbs and barks, without the use of any mineral poisons, and is entirely free from all alcoholic liquors. Do not purchase cathartic purging syrups to temporarily stimulate the stomach, but continue to prevent bile and thus strengthen the digestive organs.

Read the Following Testimonials:
From GEO. S. MAYNARD, for twenty-three years a member of the Boston Police Force:
A. M. ROBINSON, Jr.—I have been troubled for a long time with Dyspepsia and indigestion. I have tried many so-called remedies without beneficial results. I finally got a bottle of your Bell's Sarsaparilla and the result has been most satisfactory. Before half the bottle was gone I was better; my appetite improved and I can now eat all kinds of food without any evil results from it.
GEO. S. MAYNARD, Block Store, Bangor.

From Conductor Chase, M. C. R. R. between Bangor and Vanceboro:
For months I have been subject to severe attacks of liver trouble, with headache, pain in my side, poor appetite, stomach troubles, etc. I tried various remedies but got no relief until I took Bell's Sarsaparilla. That hit my case. I am free from pain and my general health is better than for months.
E. G. CHASE, M. C. R. R., Bangor.

Bell's Sarsaparilla proved the Remedy.
To A. M. Robinson, Jr.—I am more than willing to add my testimony to the value of Bell's Sarsaparilla. For several years I have been troubled with headache, indigestion and general debility. I have taken Bell's Sarsaparilla for a few weeks and am now perfectly well. I have consulted physicians and tried different kinds of medicines, but have found relief in this Sarsaparilla alone.

By order of the Republican City Committee.

C. L. MARSTON, Chairman.

Bangor, April 17th, 1884.

Fast Day.

In accordance with the time honored custom this day is set apart as a time for fasting, humiliation and prayer. In his proclamation, published elsewhere, the Governor of the State recommends that the people abstain as far as possible from secular employment and turn their thoughts more fully to the Giver of all good upon Whose bounty We are dependent for all that we possess. Public services will be held in the various churches and we do it be in the church or in the privacy of the home circle, the day should be observed in a manner befitting the solemn purposes for which it is designated.

The Candidate of the People.

It is very amusing in the face of the great popular movement from Maine to California in favor of the nomination of Hon. James G. Blaine, as the Republican candidate for President, to note the Boston Advertiser, and read the contradictory and labored article in which the regular Augusta correspondent of that paper, after admitting that "Blaine is the first choice of the majority of Maine Republicans," that "his personal magnetism will bind to him many devoted friends" and that "the rank and file of the party will vote for him," the writer goes on to say that "Public reaction" has taken place and that there is a great lack of enthusiasm in the State.

The fact is Mr. Blaine was never stronger with the masses than he is to-day, he being the one man who can appropriately be called "the candidate of the people" and the knowledge of his increasing popularity is just what excites the ire of such papers as the Boston Advertiser which has in the past made repeated and wholly unjustifiable attacks upon the distinguished statesman. Even those papers which are strongly opposed to Mr. Blaine's candidacy, but which have the courage to face the facts as they exist, have to acknowledge that his strength with the people is a positive quantity and that he is going to have a very strong following in the National Convention. The Boston Traveller, an Arthur organ, says:

"Nothing is gained by refusing to recognize the central fact of the existing situation, which is, that Mr. Blaine is going into the convention at the head of a very formidable body of delegates. In 1880, he was defeated by the steadfastness of the 306 Grant delegates, though the action of Massachusetts and the other New England States in refusing to reinforce them resulted in the choice of Garfield, whose short administration was, in fact, Blaine's. In 1884, as things now look, there will be no such column as Grant's to oppose him. Mr. Arthur's candidacy offered the rallying-point for such a column, but the Independents, with singular fatuity, prefer to make the main warfare on the President, who has conformed his course in all essential points to most their views. In the end their action promises to make the Arthur column an ineffectual barrier to the Blaine movement, and when it breaks it can scarcely be doubted that enough of its Southern rank would go to Mr. Blaine to secure his nomination."

The Philadelphia North American, another paper favorable to President Arthur, referring to the Pennsylvania delegation says it will go to Chicago "substantially solid for Mr. Blaine." In New York State, which it has been thought might go against Blaine, he is rapidly developing strength and ten of the twenty-two delegates already elected will go for him on the first ballot, four are doubtful and two are to be contested with a strong probability that the Blaine men will be successful. The result of these elections is a disagreeable surprise to the anti-Blaine men.

The remarkable Blaine "movement" throughout the country originated among the men who do the voting and is being carried forward in spite of the politicians who have vainly endeavored to turn the popular current into another channel. Said one man in the West recently: "The determination of the masses to go for the nomination of Blaine is beyond control, and when approached by the men who usually lead the voters they refuse to listen, and simply remark 'We are going for Blaine.'"

The attempt of the Advertiser correspondent to make it appear that there is any lack of enthusiasm in this State is only a waste of time. Mr. Blaine is not only the "first choice" but is the only choice of an overwhelming majority of the Republicans of this State, and whether or not the delegates from Maine are instructed for him he is sure of their steadfast and enthusiastic support just as long as his name is before the Convention.

Whether or not Mr. Payne is a Presidential candidate seems to be an inscrutable mystery. His son says he is not, and he replies that he is not responsible for what his son says, as they are two different persons. Can it be a case of "Oliver and I are out"? In the meantime it is reasonably certain that Mr. Payne would not plod away with grief if he should happen to be nominated, After all.

Republican Caucuses.

Notice is given elsewhere of the Republican caucuses to be held in the several wards on Thursday evening of next week. Six delegates are to be elected in each ward, three to attend the District Convention which meet in this city April 29, and three to the State Convention which also meets in Bangor the following day, or April 30. The conventions this year are of especial importance as in connection with the nomination of a candidate for Representative to Congress from the Fourth District and a candidate for Governor, Presidential Electors are also to be nominated and delegates to the National Convention elected. The caucuses should be largely attended.

Republican City Committee.

At a meeting of the Republican City Committee held yesterday O. L. Marston, Esq., was elected Chairman and Thomas W. Burr Esq., secretary. Both of these gentlemen are eminently qualified for the important positions to which they have been elevated by their fellow committeemen and will without doubt, perform the duties devolving on them in a manner that will at once reflect credit upon themselves as well as the party they represent. The retiring chairman, Geo. A. Davenport, Esq., has labored well to promote the interests of the Republicans of this city and is entitled to their sincere thanks for the part he performed in reducing the city debt this spring. This is a very important year in political matters, a great deal depending upon the City Committee and its members should have the hearty co-operation of all earnest Republicans in carrying forward the campaign to a successful issue.

The Tariff Question.

A WEAK VICTORY FOR MORRISON.—AN ANALYSIS OF THE VOTE.

(Special Dispatch to the Boston Journal.)

WASHINGTON, April 17. Morrison gained a victory in the House to-day. It cannot be called an overwhelming victory, considering that the Democrats have a majority of 75, and the motion to consider the bill was carried by two votes, not enough to call the flood-gates of eloquence now opened. The pledge is expected to last for eight days. The list of speakers contains seventy names. Each of the gentlemen expects to spell one hour. This morning it seemed probable that the friends of the bill would win by a small majority. The most confident did not expect to exceed five, while others thought the casting vote of the Speaker might be required. Last night James, one of the Republicans who had promised to vote against consideration, recalled his pledge. The pledgings of Shurtleff, the Ohio delegation had also reported a majority in favor. Applications were also made to members of the majority upon whose votes the opponents of the bill counted, and who were promised that it should be so amended as to repeal the tax on fruit spirits and on bonded whiskey, cigars, etc. This promise, it was said, lost votes from Virginia, Tennessee and South Carolina, and kept the North Carolina men solid for consideration. All implied promise also that coal and salt should be restored to the dutiable list is said to have resulted in the defection of West Virginia from the opponents of consideration.

Two hundred and seventy-eight votes were cast, 140 for and 138 against consideration. Five Republicans and six Democrats voted in the affirmative and 99 Republicans and 39 Democrats in the negative. Thirty-six of the absentees were paired and did not vote, which without being paired. Five of the eight are Republicans, and had they been present or paired, in favor consideration would have been defeated. The names are Bowen, Campbell, Hooper, Lamb, Lindsey, Culberson, Ellis and Price. In addition to the above absent were Hutchins, Lowry and Plumer, of California. The five Republicans who voted for consideration were Anderson, of Kansas, Nelson, Smith and Wakefield, of Minnesota and James, of New York. The 39 Democrats who voted against consideration were Hewitt, of Alabama, Hatch, Glascock, Henley and Pully of California, Eaton of Connecticut, Lamb of Indiana, Fingety of Illinois, Hall of Louisiana, Findley of Maryland, Townsend, Fields and McAdoo of New Jersey, Cowles, Forney, Ridge, Warner and Wilkins of Ohio, Bayly, Curtis, Dunnell, Beltzhoover, Mutchler, Patton, Post, Randall and Storm of Pennsylvania, Bankhead and George D. Wise of Virginia, Arnot, Hardy, Miller, Robinson, Springer, Stevens, Van Alstyne and Wright, of New York. Among the Democrats who voted for consideration and who will probably vote to strike out the enacting clause of the bill at the proper time, are Beach of New York, Dibrell of Tennessee, Mills of Louisiana, Garrison and Cabell of Texas, Hobbitzell of Maryland, Robertson of California, Spooner of Connecticut, Snyder of West Virginia, Tillman of South Carolina.

Randall was on hand early, although still suffering greatly from a recent attack of gout. When the motion was made to go into the Committee of the Whole on the pending Republican bill to repeal the tax on fruit spirits, Randall voted to lay it on the table, but Kelley did not. Randall then voted to go into Committee of the Whole on the bill, and when Morrison moved to strike out the enacting clause of the bill Randall voted against it. Kelley voted to strike out the enacting clause of the bill. Morrison then moved the previous question on the bill and amendments, and this was carried by a vote of 144 to 138. Randall voted against the previous question, and Kelley voted for it. Morrison then moved to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and this motion was carried by a vote of 144 to 138. Randall voted against laying on the table the motion to reconsider, and Kelley voted for it. Morrison then moved the previous question on the passage of the bill, and this was carried by a vote of 144 to 138. Randall voted against the previous question, and Kelley voted for it. The bill was then passed by a vote of 154 to 0, Randall and Kelley voting in the affirmative. Morrison then moved to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, and this was carried by a vote of 154 to 0. Randall voted against laying on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, and Kelley voted for it. Morrison then moved to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, and this was carried by a vote of 154 to 0. Randall voted against laying on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed, and Kelley voted for it.

Anderson's constituents favor a reduction of taxation. He does not favor the Morrison bill in its present form, but he desired the opportunity to vote for a tariff bill, hence his vote to-day. Smith made the same explanation as the other Minnesota Republicans.

A SHORT TRIUMPH FOR MORRISON.

A New York Democrat who voted against the consideration of the Morrison Tariff bill said to-night that there are at least seventeen Democrats who voted with Morrison to-day, who have stated that they voted only because they desired to support the committee, and that upon the question of passage they would vote "No." This gentleman said, further, that Judge Kelley's speech had done more damage to Democratic prospects this fall than would be counterbalanced by all the talk of the advocates of the bill if they speak until September.

Death of Henry J. Byron.

Henry J. Byron was born in Manchester, in 1834, and came of the same stock as Byron the poet. At the age of eighteen, he went on the stage, left it because of family objection, tried medicine, failed, and then, while thinking whether it was best for him to go to the bar or enter the church, had the good fortune to have a piece which he had "scribbled off" accepted by Mrs. Swanborough, who was just then about to open the Strand Theatre. As he had thrown "physic to the dogs," so he hurled Blackstone and clerical garments and became a playwright. The burlesque of "Fra Diavolo," which Mrs. Swanborough had brought out proved a great success, and his facile pen kept the Strand going for many a day. He also wrote burlesques for the Adelphi and the Olympic, and a pantomime for Drury Lane, all of which were peculiarly and professionally successful.

Not satisfied, however, with the success he had attained in dramatic authorship, Byron aspired to be a manager, and in company with the lady who is now Mrs. Bancroft, he opened a place famous theatre, from which the lady, who was Marie Wilton, retired about three years ago. The little theatre off Tottenham Court road was then known as the Queen's but, by special authority of his royal highness, it was renamed the Prince of Wales'. Among the popular actors and actresses who found their opportunity at this theatre were Mr. Bancroft, Mr. Hare, Mr. J. Clark and Miss Fanny Josephs. It was here also that Robertson found that opening for his genius which had been persistently denied him elsewhere. The often rejected "Society" was produced by Mr. Byron, and "Ours," and "Caste" followed in due course. Mr. Byron's London season were a great success, and netted him a good deal of money. But he wanted to run more than one place of amusement. He went to Liverpool, undertook to answer for the three principal theatres, failed after a hard struggle, and came out of the venture without a dollar in pocket or in bank.

Penniless he returned to London, and straightway wrote three new pieces, all of which are well known in America. These were "Blow for Blow," "The Lancers" "Dearer than Life." While these were bringing him in money, he adapted to make his reappearance on the stage, and so wrote "Not Such a Fool as He Looks," with the character of Sir Simon Simple specially cast for himself. This was first produced in Manchester, and subsequently at Liverpool, where Sothern saw it, and, fancying the leading character, arranged with Byron to make it his own. But Sothern didn't do well in it, and Byron, declining to make certain alterations suggested by Dundreary, the character reverted to the author, and has since been played nearly a thousand times.

But all that Byron wrote during his industrious life was eclipsed by the success of "Our Boys." This was the most popular comedy, so far as popularity can be measured by the run of a play, ever produced in England or, probably, in any country. The annals of the stage might be consulted in vain for an example of such a success as Byron's "Our Boys" has tabled. Perhaps no piece ever written brought so much money to the first adventurers as this one has done. To the fortunate individual who secured the privilege of playing "Our Boys" out of London, they have brought at least $100,000.

Beside his dramatic work, Mr. Byron at one time edited Fun, contributed to Punch, and wrote numerous dramatic, critical and leading articles. He also wrote "Paid in Full" and one other novel. It is said that he brought out the late T. W. Robertson as a dramatic writer, and that he was the first to discover W. S. Gilbert's talent in that direction.

Straw Hats in Many Styles.

The stylish mushroom colors are shown in straws, varying from pale beige color to dark brown. It is the rule that the hat must match the costume, and every shade of cloth is repeated in the fine strong Milan braids which form the mass of the season's importations. Over one hundred racing shapes are shown in straw. There are hats with high crowns and straight brims short at the back, and hats with square full English crowns and flaring brims. The "Du Barry" is a high-crowned English hat with a rolled brim. The "La Belle" has a full square crown and flaring brim rolled up at one side. "West Point Cadet" and "Young General" hats have straight visor fronts. These hats are so simply trimmed that the most inexperienced person can readily put on the plain gravat bands or the endless twist of velvet that surrounds the crown or add the cluster of ostrich tips that completes the trimming. One or two long spikes of gold are then thrust through the straw if the wearer fancies it.

Little bonnets of Milan or Tuscany braid are shown in long crowned Langtry shape, in square Anne Boleyn shape, straight across the top with square corners in capote and cottage style. The Fedora bonnet is made with a broad crown and slightly flaring brim. A new shape in the English turbans is rolled high over the forehead and short at the back, and is worn off the face like a bonnet. The "Harlequin" is a new shaped hat for children. The brim is straight and the pointed Alpine crown is sloped jauntily toward one side. There are also plain Alpine hats with straight brims, which are especially stylish for young girls and school children, and there are hats shaped like Chinese pagodas, which have broad brims that shade the eyes. Extremely large hats of imported straw are shown in the stylishly coarse qualities of rough and ready braid. These hats, despite their appearance, are light and pleasant and will be chosen for shade-hats and for general country wear.

Trimmed bonnets and hats are shown in the handsome millinery parlors on the second floor. A small capote bonnet in shades of mushroom brown is trimmed with a plume of marabout feathers in pale brown, mingled with a bunch of wild poppies, a roll of corrugated red velvet by gold nut borders the edge of the bonnet, and the brim is lined with velvet in the same brilliant shade of red. A bonnet of fine white satin braid is trimmed with a roll of violet velvet and finished by a large cluster of centaurea, leaves and velvet morning-glory blossoms in shades of violet and crimson; a golden arrow is thrust through the bonnet at the side and a facing of violet velvet edged with gold cord completes the trimming. A straw hat with a high square crown is shown in shades of English gray. A puffed border of shadowy gray velvet edges the brim and a band of fancy echeniller and steel surrounds the crown. A cluster of nodding tips joins the hat nearly in front, and a small steel battle-axe is thrust through the straw at the side.
